OMAR LIZARDO

"Liking Things, Talking Culture, and Making Friends"

Dominican Studies Institute Library
NAC 2/202
Wednesday April 4th 2012
4-5:30 pm

Omar Lizardo is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Notre Dame. His research looks at youth, culture and networks. His talk will explore the links between cultural tastes and practices, conversational interaction and social network outcomes, paying special emphasis on how this research informs our thinking about the bases of social stratification in the contemporary context.
